IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

REFORE MR. JUSTICE RUSSELL. To Ayu v. Lee Achuk, $11.50.—This was a claim for balance of account due on a sale of Japanese fans. The original account was for $21.50, of which $10 had been paid. The defendant said the transaction was with his partner, who is now in Singapore, and he had asked the plaintiff to wait until his partner returned in order that he might see swhether the account, was correct, as he believed the fans had been bought by his partner for himself and not for the shop; he expected his partner back from Singapore in a fortnight -On defendant giving security for the amount claimed, the case was adjourned. TSUNG LUN V. RAY, $10; WONG ACHAN V. THE SAME, $10.86 .- These were suits brought against Miss Ray by her boy and amah to recover wages. The woman and boy claimed to stand in the relation of mother and son, but the boy appeared to be ignorant of his mother's name, to explain this inconsistency the amah said her son might have forgotten her name while the boy said it was a slip of the tongue. The defendant admitted owing wages earned from the 11th to the boy. The amah took his part and they both left denied that she dismissed them. The plaintiffs

FOR LOVE OF ART It depends very much on the motives nicthods they take of showing their appreciation or of airing their knowledge benefit to any appreciable degree those for whom their wisdom is paraded. Should the motives be purely selfish, the pleasure or benefit derived is confined to the performer. Should the lover of art be actuated by a desire to inform his presumably weaker brothren a good object is obtained, though in return for his well-meant information the instructor is generally regarded as a more or less amiable hore. First we may endeavour to realise what is the motive power that seems to constrain a purely selfish man to constitute himself an anhoyance to his neighbours, and all for love of art—the special branch of ar
